

In the matter of cellular telephone use aboard airborne aircraft, I want to urge the Commission NOT to allow any expanded use of cellular phones on aircraft, for two reasons:

- 1) It would very probably interfere with passengers' hearing of important emergency announcements, which can happen at any time during a flight.
- 2) It would be very annoying to passengers trying to read, sleep, or work.

The telephones already installed in many airplane seat-backs can also have these problems.
